

Prayer, Uncertainty, and Pastoral Care

One-Hour Webinar

Thursday, April 27

12:00pm-1:00pm EST

This event is free to the public.

Teaching from his personal and academic expertise in a way that contributes to the transformation of personal, communal, and public life; this webinar will strengthen our ability to pray with and accompany community members without the aim of certainty. Log on and learn how to hold sacred space from an authentic and well-equipped position.

Rev. Eunil David Cho, Ph.D.

Assistant Professor of Spiritual Care and Counseling at Boston University School of Theology, Dr. Cho is an ordained Presbyterian (USA) minister with a background in congregational ministry and chaplaincy. He has also worked with immigrant and refugee populations before an appointment at Brite Divinity School at Texas Christian University as Visiting Assistant Professor of Pastoral Theology and Care through the Louisville Institute Postdoctoral Fellowship Program. He has authored numerous articles on pastoral and practical theology, psychology of religion, Asian American theology and ministry, and narrative theories and practices. In 2022, he became the co-editor-elect for Journal of Pastoral Theology. His first book "Making Sense of Life with God: Religious Stories that Dreamers Tell in the Face of Uncertainty" is on the way.
